

Pass the Penny

You'll need:

- A penny for each team
- A spoon for each member on the team
- A chair for each team
- A whistle or horn

How to play:

- Divide the group evenly into two or more small teams.
- Each team stands in a line. Give each person on the team a spoon.
- The first person in each line puts a penny on a spoon. Once the penny is in the spoon, participants are not allowed to touch the penny with their fingers. If the penny falls, they must use their spoon to scoop up the penny to continue the relay.
- A chair is set at the far end of the relay area.
- On the signal, the first player in line on each team carries the penny on the spoon to the chair, circles the chair three times and returns to the line.
- The first player then transfers the penny to the spoon of the second player, then goes to the end of the line. The second player now runs to the chair, circles the chair three times and returns to the line. The second player transfers the penny to the spoon of the third player and then goes to the end of the line.
- Play continues until the first player is back at the front of the line and has the penny in his or her spoon. The first team to finish wins.
